Throughout history music has been used to express our desires. Who can forget that classic “Boiled Beef and Carrots”? Judaism, too, has its classics, and sung by such greats as Bruce Adler and Alan Sherman.

In his research into the forgotten foods of the Ashkenazi world Tony discovered some masterpieces that ring down the ages.

This talk is a series of songs about food mixed in with an explanation for each as to their place in Yiddishkeit and Jewish song. It is great fun, and quite instructive. Listen to some of the greatest tunes before they disappear forever from the Jewish World.

NEXT MEETING : 3.30pm Tuesday 14th December

‘The story of Jewish Members of Parliament who served Britain during the WW1’ with guest speaker Lola Fraser
