A journey through the streets and alleys of London to discover the thousand - year history of the Jews in England. From the arrival of a Jewish community from Normandy in 1066/67 to the Kindertransport children of 1938/39, Jews have played important roles in the unfolding drama of British history. We will visit some of the most spectacular sites in the City. We will also reveal the little - known Jewish associations of some of London's most famous landmarks.

Ian studied law at the universities of Southampton and Oxford, going on to work as a City lawyer, 35 years later he got time off for good behaviour and decided to do something interesting instead. He studied history at UCL and qualified as a guide in the Cities of London and Westminster. His tours are designed to provide a mix of fun and facts
